

Fascinating corners of the Prague Václav Havel Airport

Many travellers looking for adventure fly to exotic destinations. Even though the international airport of Prague is the starting point for some of them, only few know what is going on in places that are usually hidden from the eyes of tourists. The Prague Václav Havel Airport however offers a chance to become a part of the fascinating world of flying for a while and find out more about these closely observed premises.

If you love exploring new places, you can take a regular guided tour around these airport facilities. It will bring you closer to the aircrafts and make you see how they prepare for their next flight. You can even visit the fire station or a hangar where the maintenance takes place. You can also try how comfortable it is to travel using VIP services which provide airport lounges, limousines and waiting with no lines.

The tour is an unusual experience for everyone. Experienced guides adapt their commentary according to the visitors so you will enjoy yourself no matter if you are a parent with children or a lover of aviation. There are five different routes and additional festive ones.

If you like taking pictures of planes then you should not miss a special tour for amateur photographers which will bring you just a few steps far from the airplanes.

If you want to explore the Prague Václav Havel Airport you need to book in advance. Click on www.prg.aero, choose services and leisure and then simply pick up a date and a suitable tour. The price is 170 CZK for adults and 90 CZK for children, students and seniors.

Did you know that Prague Václav Havel Airport tours are one of the most popular attractions in Prague? There are more than 30 000 people who peek behind the curtain every year!
